The screenshot shows a Windows Internet Explorer browser window displaying the website <http://www.environmentfordevelopment.org/themes/conservation>. The browser's address bar and menu bar are visible at the top. The website content includes a navigation menu with links for Site Map, Contact, Wiki, Login, RSS, and EFD 中国. A search bar is located on the right side of the navigation menu. The main content area features the EFD logo on the left and a grid of links for EFD INITIATIVE, CENTERS, THEMES, RESEARCH, RESOURCES, and EFD NEWS. The 'Parks & Wildlife' link is highlighted in green. Below the navigation menu is a large banner image of zebras with the text: "BY PROVIDING POLICY INSTRUMENTS TO MANAGE SCARCE NATURAL RESOURCES, ENVIRONMENTAL ECONOMISTS MAKE A DIFFERENCE." Underneath the banner, the 'PARKS & WILDLIFE' section is titled, followed by links for Publications and Projects. Below this is the 'EFD NEWSLETTER' section with a 'Subscribe/Unsubscribe' link. At the bottom, there is an 'FB & TWITTER' section with a Facebook icon and the text 'Gilla 467'. The browser's status bar at the bottom indicates 'Internet | Protected Mode: On' and '100%' zoom.

Parks & Wildlife

Costa Rica and South Africa share a common policy of creating national protected areas (NPA) as a way to achieve on-site conservation of key landscapes, ecosystems, and/or species. The Central American and the South African EFD centers are working closely with local authorities to tackle the main difficulties in achieving a sustainable system of NPA.

Costa Rica and South Africa share a common policy of creating national protected areas (NPA) as a way to achieve on-site conservation of key landscapes, ecosystems, and/or species. Furthermore, both countries are quite successful in this policy. Still, a lot remains to be done and both the Central
